

Ch. 6—Example

Write answers in your journal

Key Terms

anecdote
assumption
description
exposition

generalization
narrative
purpose
thesis

thesis statement
topic sentence

Questions

1. How does one choose a generalization?
2. Should we choose a generalization first or our examples first and then write the generalization?
3. What do we do with a faulty generalization?
4. How can research help us with examples? (this is fairly obvious)

Vocabulary

conjecture
contemptuous
gastronomical

litigant
orate
ostensibly

pertinent
smug
vary